

American Indian Corn Cob

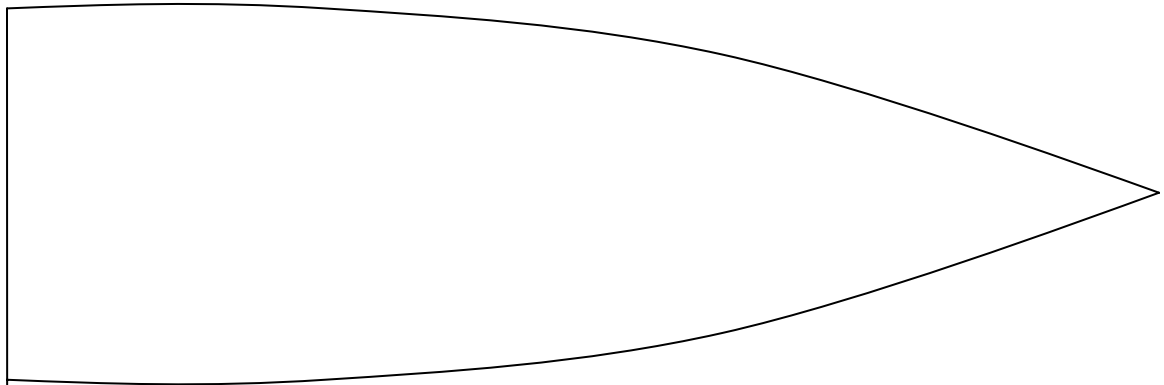

For many American Indian groups in Arizona corn plays an important role. Different groups grow corn for food often grinding the corn to make flour. Groups like the Hopi believe corn is sacred and that certain spirits brought them corn.

You Need:

- Toilet Tissue Roll
- Yellow Paint
- Green Tissue Paper
- Multi-Colored Popcorn or Indian Corn
- Glue

Step 1: Paint the toilet tissue roll yellow. Set it aside to dry.

Step 2: While the roll is drying, cut out 4 leaf shapes (shown below). You want your leaf to be about 2 inches wide and 6 inches long.

Step 3: Once the roll is dry, glue the leaf shapes onto the roll so the flat side of the leaf lines up along the bottom edge of the roll. Glue the leaf half way up the roll so part of the leaf flops back and about half of the roll is showing above the leaves. The sides of the leaves will overlap a little.

Step 4: Once your leaves are in place, spread the section of the roll that is showing with glue and stick the popcorn all over it so it looks like an ear of corn.
